MINING INTELLIGENCE. We notice, in our exchanges, evidence that the late rains have stimulated the miners to improve

all their opportunities in getting out gold. RAILROAD FLAT, CALAVERAS.—The Amador Sentinel of Dec. 19th says of this place :

POVERTY HILL.-A correspondent, writing from San Andreas, Dec. 15th, to the Calaveras Chronicle remarks of this locality .

Leaving Yaque Camp, we climbed Poverty Hill and visited the mining claim of Lewis, Fine & Co. To open this claim has taken its owners three years of the most laborious kind of work. They ran a tunnel and open cut nearly seven hundred feet through the bed rock, as a drain for of many years). It has heretofore been only prospected; but when water has been obtained in a sufficient quantity, then will they go to work in earnest. It has been known to pay to its present proprietors fifty dollars a day to the and; and the dirt from which it was taken was obtained under difficulties which do not exist at present. Going still further up the ammit of the hill, one of the finest views in this part of the country strikes the eye. The glistening with verdure, to the Calaveritas river; at its base is situated the town of Lower Calaoperations are going on in every direction ome sluicing, some at toms-the hydraulic, Titan like, tearing with mighty and giant force cons of earth and rock from their resting place the Celestials in herds at work with the primitive rocker, and the Greaser with his "batteios." From the river is an abrupt hill, on which the quartz operations of Wallace & Co. are visible. This lead, as far as prospected, has proven very rich; and Lower Calaveritas promises to become a place of considerable quartz importance. scending the hill again, we came to Yaque Tun-nel, owned by Joe Nickerson & Allen Miller; but, as they were absent, we did not enter. It is said to be very rich. The ditches are all filled with water. Mining has never been entered into with more activity than at present, and there is every prospect of a speedy and rich return. CHILI GULCH .- The same paper refers to the diggings at this place as follows:

Two days since we had the pleasure of a walk of a mile or so, to the Chili Gulch range. On both sides of the stream, which is a mere ravine or rivulet, many claims of value are being worked, some of which are paying well. The only hydraulic claim is on this side, nearest town, and belongs to James Butteman & Co. Butteman and friends gave us to understand that they were getting good pay, say from five to ten dollars per day to the hand, clear of water and all other expenses. We failed to see them washing, or actually at work, as the bank commenced caving; and as we sat at the top of the bank, piece after piece commenced tumbling, with a crash and nd like distant thunder; yet the main cave had not taken place. What struck us particular larly was the correct vision the miner possesses to ascertain the coming event; yet it seems with an almost unalterable eye they watch the approach of danger; yet sometimes they are sufferers. But the information received co vinces us of the truth we have hitherto published and said, that, in this vicinity there are as good diggings as can be found in any mining loe claim, which was pointed out to us -one-third interest-could have been bought a short time since for $300, and now $2,000 has been refused, and $5,000 asked. Up and down the gulch, as far as the eye can reach, the evidences of prosperity show themselves plainly. We did not continue our walk, but seating our selves with friends on top of the caving bank, seventy-five feet above the surface of the creek we obtained a good geography, from which we

AMADOR COUNTY .- The Ledger alludes to operations in the following localities:

CONTRERAS. - This new quartz mining camp is rapidly becoming a town of considerable importance. Perham & Co. are putting up a first class quartz mill on their lead; their rock is known to be very rich. THE Volcano ditch which had, immediately after the last rains, some 40 or 50 inches of water in it, now has none, as the frosty nights and clear days have frozen and dried it all up. PINE GROVE. -- A piece of gold weighing over thirteen ounces, has been picked up in the claim of Bradshaw & Co., at Pine Grove. New diggings have been discovered on the hill side, near Pine Grove, that prospects very well. It is on ground very easy to work. THE Placerville American of Dec. 19th thus Story, Robinson & Co., have made arrangements Moore. with the owners under prospects very favorable The lode has been reopened near the surface. showing the gold in beautiful shining flakes in the quartz, which it is estimated will pay sixty or seventy dollars to the ton. The American Mill, with its great wheel, is one of the best constructed in the county, and will crush about eighty tons in twenty-four hours. It has ten stamps, and two or three arastras are to be erected in addition, for saving the gold more perfectly from the slate in which the quartz is imbedded. A wheel will also be erected for pumping water from the shaft. A large flume of the South Fork Ditch Company, which will supply the mill with water, was blown down during the late storm, and the mill will go into operation as soon as it can be repaired, which will be in about ten days.

RESERVOIR HILL.-Two of the tunnels on Reservoir Hill, three miles from this city, have been partially obstructed by caving, caused by the late rains. In one owned by B. Coates and others, several sets of timbers were crushed, which it will take a few weeks to renew. The tunnel of Timothy Hogan was also considerably damaged; he had reached pay dirt which yielded about $3 to the car load. He had not gone far in the hill, and he has since commenced a new tunnel, the former one not having been started at the right elevation. He expects to reach pay dirt again in a few weeks.

THE LAST CRISIS.—The following, from an Eastern exchange, is not bad:

A gentleman dined with a friend one day, And above he heard sobbing and crying; He inquired of his friend, in an anxious wa "If there was any one sick or dying?" "Oh, no," he replied, and smiling his best, While they were discussing the ices; "I have just refused Helen a new silk dress, And produced a financial cry-sis."

In a very few minutes the Hall and the street in front of it swarmed with an excited crowd. Some cried "hoax!" but none the less did the strain their eyes to see what was to see, and their ears to hear what was to hear. During this time, Captain Donnellan, officers Baker Dexter, Bailey, and others, had reached Lich tenstein's shop, had identified the blinking Pole and taken him in charge. He was immediately searched, and several bottles of laudanum from their claim, and have opened a space of nearly sixty feet in diameter, from which they intend hydraulicing the whole hill (a work, by-the-by, to the Station House, followed by an immense crowd, who blocked up the streets and con-stantly increased. At the Station House, Orlinski was led into an iron cell and more thou oughly searched. His clothing was taken off, and it was found that he had several suits on, one over the other. Outside he had a large dark overcoat, bordered with fur, and next it a vest and shirt. Under these, there was a light gray coat, vest and another shirt. In fact, the whole dress showed the greatest forethought and preparation for contingencies.

> particularly from an inspection of the man him-self, it may easily be imagined that Orlinski is a last evening, the officers were perfectly furious against him; but in a short half hour Orlinski and they were talking with perfect freedom about his escape, and the manner and plans of as life since that time. The prisoner was very communicative, and by the exceeding prudence if his answers and statements, commanded a considerable degree of respect—that sort of respect which all persons will pay to a strong mind, in whatever situation it be found. The story told by Orlinski cannot be regarded as true main correct. He pretended that he felt grieved for officer Moore, whom he almost murdered, and that his remorse on that account had preved upon his spirits. He however at the same time pretended to have procured the papers and could see that officer Moore was out of danger and rapidly recovering. Another part of his story was that, when he endeavored to pawn his pistol at Lichtenstein's, he gave his name as Or-linski, and that such was the only manner in which Lichtenstein knew him. This is altogether ncredible, although gravely stated as truth in some quarters. Both statements were calculated to secure favor, and were evidently the machinations of a designing and active mind.

In giving a history of himself, Orlinski said, that after he had struck Moore to the floor in the Station House, and escaped into the street, e ran down Merchant into Montgomery street. and then up Clay to the staircase near Lock-wood & Hendrie's store, which he ascended. Oficer Ellis was but a short distance behind him. He was very much exhausted, but managed to get down to Merchant street, where he remained till the search had somewhat relaxed, when he to Kearny street, whence he crossed the Plaza, and proceeded to Jackson street, and then out that street to the sandy and bushy hills on the south and west parts of the city. He remained in the bushes several days, getting some bread from a baker's cart, and from that time to last evening he had generally spent his days in value. He also says that he was in the neighborhood of Point Lobos, and was seen there by a hunter, supposed to be Chauvin, whose account of having seen a man, supposed Wednesday night, according to his story, he came into the city and purchased, among other things, the two bottles of laudanum which were nd in his pockets at the time of his arrest. Deputy Marshal Randall. It is to be remarked, however, that the fellow is an incorrigible villain, and his statements are to be taken with a wide margin of allowance.

It may be stated, in conclusion, that several nore charges, in addition to the six preferred bim, which was done, although it created much before the escape, have been made against Orlinski-one for being an escaped prisoner, and another for an assault with intent to kill officer of this city, and the father of a family, related place there: to us this morning the most singular event that has come to our knowledge for a long time. He says that some time during yesterday he went into a saloon with some friends to partake of refreshments. While there, he was approached by a well dressed man, who held in his arms a beautiful and interesting little female child, about two years of age. The man was, apparently, neither drunk nor deranged, yet bore distressed look. After a survey of our friend. he remarked that he liked his face, and offered o sell him the child for the sum of five dollars The gentleman addressed took the child in his arms, and jocularly remarked: "You are triffing; there is not enough money in California to pur chase the child." The man replied that he was The man replied that he was n earnest, and all he asked was five dollars. On being further questioned, he said that he was the father of the little one; that its mother had deserted it; and that he had just arrived from the interior, and wished to be rid of it. The gentleman declined to buy, and as he walked off was followed by the man, who insisted on his purchasing the child.

Later in the afternoon, as the gentleman was going home, he met the same individual on the street, with a crowd around him, offering the infant to any one for the small sum of five dollars. Fearing that the child would fall into mproper hands, and thinking perhaps it had been stolen from its parents, our friend stepped up to the man, and said he had altered his min and would take the little girl. The money was proffered and accepted, and the real or preended father passed over the child to a stranger without a sign of regret or remorse. Our friend took the young creature, and requesting an acquaintance near to get the man's address, started for home. The child being cold and fretful, he purchased some confectionary at a store to quiet it until he could reach home. After a good meal, which it ate almost raver ously, it was properly cared for by his wife, and this morning is playing with his children as merrily and contented as if nestled at its own

The same paper, of the following day, remarks

further : The man who sold it was the father, is named Horsley, and comes from Stockton. He is addicted to liquor, and has given his family considerable trouble by his dissolute habits. During one of his late fits of intoxication, his wife taking another child, left the house and came to this city to the house of an acquaintance, leaving the little girl in bed with her father. Her object appears not to have been bad, although few will consider her desertion of the child as ustifiable. When Horsley awake, he found his house deserted and himself alone with the little innocent. For some time, as might be expected, that his wife had come to San Francisco, he con cluded to follow her, arrived here on Wednesday night, and stopped at the Howard House, on the south side of Pacific, between Front and Davis

On Thursday morning, Horsley requested Mrs. Kelsey, the landlady of the Howard House, to dress the child, and stated that he was going to take it to its mother, whom he pretended to have found. The child was accordingly dressed, and Horsley started out—not to see the mother, as he pretended, but with the deliberate intention of disposing of the child to whoever would buy With this purpose, he proceeded through the streets and offered the little girl for sale at various places—until fortunately the gentleman of whom we spoke yesterday, C. H. West, generously interfered, and to save the innocent from a dreadful destiny, paid the man his price and took the little one to his own home.

Yesterday, the mother was found, and after the most urgent protestations and apparently sincere promises of reform on the part of the husband, returned and took up her lodgings with him at the Howard House. She demanded her child, and Horsley, half distracted with contrition for what he had done, started off in search of the person with whom the bargain had been

The father of the child was arrested by the police, but subsequently released.

INDIANS KILLED IN CALAVERAS-A MYSTER Solved .- We copy the following interesting particulars, connected with the shooting of an American, some time since, near West Point, by matters to worry about her recitations. Grammatters to worry about her recitations. Indians, and the punishment awarded therefor, from the Calaveras Chronicle of Dec. 19th:

It will be remembered by our readers that we published, a few weeks since, an account of a horse having been found in the woods east of West Point, near the ranch of Mr. Hatfield, with saddle and bridle, and a fresh bullet hole through one ear, creating the supposition that some one reascended, and climbed to the roof of the had been murdered in that vicinity. On Saturmilding, and remained there for some time to day last, a party of Indians had come from Carrest. Subsequently he passed over several roofs, and descended through the California Exchange, West Point. They told the Diggers that they had killed an American in that neighborhood, some time time since. The Diggers reported i to the Messrs. Carsner, who came to West Point, One party, when arrived near the camp, were fired upon by an Indian, who attempted to run that the report of his having been at the house immediately after discharging his gun, but was of the cooper Polanski, on the lower end of shot down by the Americans. As they entered the camp, another Indian broke and run about three quarters of a mile, when he was stopped by a rifle ball. The Chief of the tribe being at this camp, they marched their captives to the other camp, where their companions had already arrived and had succeed ed in corralling that party without trouble. After to be Orlinski, was given at the time. On last they had united they took the Chief and de manded of him the murderers of the American The Chief pointed out to them a boy about fourteen or fifteen years of age, as one of the accomplices. The boy, upon being questioned through an interpreter, denied having shot the man, but admitted that he was there, and that he shot at the head of the horse, but did not know whether he hit the horse or not. He pointed out the murderer of the American and said that he saw him shoot the American four times. They arrested this Indian, bound him, and led him a short distance from the camp, where he has since been seen, pierced by about twenty rifle balls. The boy was released. After this they held a council to determine what dis-position they should make of the Chief. The najority, however, were in favor of releasing reason the Indians assigned for the the American, was, that he had killed a bear and they wished to obtain possession of it. > Yesterday being a fine day, and business calling me in that direction, I visited the renowned rendezvous of Joaquin, in this county, Yaque Camp, so called from a company of Yaque Indians who first settled it and discovered the diggings. Of the old camp, which was in '52 the rival of San Andreas, there remains not a single house, all having been destroyed during the Joaquin excitement. It was then a thriving village, having from three to five hundred inhabitants and fifty or sixty the Methodist denomination. houses; but so effectually were they destroyed that not a single post or other mark remains to tell its exact location, about which every statetell its exact location, about which every statement varies slightly. Its fate is that of places of more note. It is still interesting, as being to be used in constructing the proposed canal from Tulare Lake to the San Joaquin river, the the scene of a severe struggle between Joaquin and some of our citizens who now occupy prominent positions among us, and the stump of a tree still stands upon which the exasperated citizens hung one of the most formidable of the great robber's compeers, known as Big Bill. He was buried near the tree, and his body re-mained there until last fall, when some Mexican relatives or friends removed it. Desperate as this man's character was, and as ungainly as was his of the soil to a ready market, and a way of obperson, yet around him woman had twined her noliest affections, and his grave was watered years after his death by their tears. "The grief of his wife," said a bystander to me, "was ago-nizing to witness." She was young, and rather handsome, but some Oberon's hand had to this Titania's eyes transformed her lover and her husband. Who knows what noble and generous sentiments dwelt beneath that rough exte rior? or what wrongs had compelled him to and beaver there, as they are quite abundant. I adopt a course of life for which he atoned so hear a good deal said about Kern river quartz fearfully? That which revived the recollections of the past in that woman must have been something noble and good, and the man who can draw forth tears from a woman's heart years after his death, could not have been altogether deprayed. The last trace of him and his career is gone from our eyes; but who knows but that above his decaying bones sweet flowers grow, and sweeter tears water them. From this came summit of Bear mountain. This tree is devoid of branches for nearly one hundred feet from its pase, when it puts forth a single bough, which at a short distance exactly resembles a flag. It was first observed during an expected invasion of the Joaquin gang, and supposing it to be a rendezous, some of our citizens armed themselves caled the sides of Bear mountain, and founda tree as described.

THE BLANCHARD CONCERT .- Referring to the debut of Mrs. Blanchard at San Francisco recently, in opera, the San Francisco Herald says: Mrs. Blanchard possesses a voice, the leading characteristic of which, we should say, was strength. The requirements of "Ah non Giunge" ades perfectly clear and distinct, and withal frefrom all forced flexibility-were a little too nany for the capabilities of the performer. itterance was sufficiently clear, her accent de eided, her tone dominant—a little too much, perhaps; but the technicalities of the composiion were not grappled with and mastered-they were taken at steeple chase stride—dashed over evidently with the expectation of orchestral re-lief in the closing passages, where the shortcomings of the singer would be lost sight of in the heavy burst of instrumentation. Doubtless to a great extent, this was owing to the embar rassment of a first appearance-a knowledge of the fact that, to a great extent, the listeners were musical people, who came about equally divided between criticizing and being enter tained. Had it been sung at the close, we thin the effect would have been better. Considere simply as an amateur and not in a professiona light, Mrs. Blanchard is certainly the finest vocal powers, together with the knowledge of how to use them to advantage, that we have yet had the pleasure of listening to in this

VISIT YOUR SCHOOLS .- The following from an Atlantic exchange may not be deemed inappropriate to the locality of California

"You could not do a better thing. Your bo has the idea that you care scarcely more than a fig's value about his progress there; your girl mar is dry as dust to her, geography is tedious, arithmetic is a bore, reading is horrid, writing is at the table, she is hushed up. You talk of stocks and Senatorships, of the war and free trade. The young ones learn to think their studies very mall matters in comparison to yours. But visit your schools. Hear a lesson or two recited. Learn from their teachers what their standing is, in what they oftenest fail, in what they excel. See who sits next them in the school room. See how they compare in personal appearance-whether they look happy and at home. If ac quainted with their school habits, you can possibly avoid talking of them. Making these matters subjects of home conversation will cer tainly stimulate them to better efforts—make much better scholars of them. By all means, then, visit your schools. Go alone, if no one will go with you. You will always be welcomed by the teacher, unless he is a fit one to be turned

FATAL ACCIDENT IN MARYSVILLE .- The follow ng particulars of a distressing accident, which took place at Marysville, are recorded in the Express of Dec. 18th: Last evening, at about dusk, a most horrible ecident occurred just outside the city. James McGin, known as Little Jimmy, the drayman, was found in the road near Kirwin's house, tween the city and the steamboat landing, lying mangled under one of his horses, which had fallen upon him. He had, a few minutes before he was found, left the steamboat landing with express matter for Randall & Co., in an expres wagon, drawn by two horses. Nearing Kirwin's house, above alluded to, he ran suddenly into rut in the road, and was thrown from his seat, one of the horses falling at the same time upor him and breaking in his chest, directly over his heart. The fallen horse kicked violently, and got his feet entangled in the harness so that he could not rise. The other stood still. When Warren Engine Co., of which he was a member took charge of his remains. He leaves a wife to mourn his loss, and a little child three or fou months old. .

Two OFFENDERS ARRESTED .- Miller Bartlett, who murdered H. Wilkinson at Six Mile Bar, on the Stanislaus, recently, and an escaped State Prison convict named Samuel McClintock, have been brought into Stockton by Sheriff Poindexdexter, of Tulare county. The Republican of Dec. 18th says:

Bartlett was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Pruett at Keysville, in Tulare county, on the 2d or 3d of December. When found, he was in a mining drift. He offered no resistance to the office Poindexter will proceed with his prisoner this morning to Mokelumne Hill-the murder having been committed in Calaveras county-where he will be tried. Samuel McClintock was sentenced in Calaveras county, for ten years, and made his escape in July, 1854. He has been prowling ut in Tulare county for a year or two, er gaged in no regular pursuit, unless it was that of stealing. He will be taken to the Penitentiary as soon as Poindexter returns from Calave ras county.
