A Fearful Tragedy at St. Louis. The Overland Mail brings the following intelligence from St. Louis: A certain Dr. E. Van Roecke, about a month ago came from Illinois, and settled in the practice of his profession in Fourth street No. 67, between Myrtle and Spruce. Whilst residing ! in Illinois he paid occasional visits to this city, and formed the ac quaintance of a very interesting young lady, Miss Mary Ann Linhoff, sister of Henry Lin hoff, a well known respectable citizen, formerly in business with a gentleman named About four weeks ago! Roccke and Miss Linhoff were married. Three days af ter the union domestic troubles began, the Doctor treating his wife shamefully, and calling her by the most opprobrious names. A few days ago an unlooked for revelation was made. Letters from another wife in Germany fell into the hands of the new Mrs. Roecke, and the latter's grief, as may be imagined, was excessive on learning that she had been so outrageously deceived, and she immediately sought the advice of her friends. The letters showed that Roecke had been living under an assumed name, and that his real name was Leonhard Edward Roech. August Hoffman, summoned by the Coroner at an inquest yesterday, stated that on Tues day he went to Henry Linhoff and apprised him of the shocking disclosures of the letters above mentioned, and consulted with him as in order to protect his (Linhoff's) sister's hon-or. Linhoff was overpowered by the intelli-pense. Good for brother Smith. called by insulting names.

Yesterday morning, a little before four o'clock, to pursue the witness' story, Linhoff went to Hoffman and said he could not sleep. After some conversation the two determined to wait until one o'clock, go to the doctor and ask him whether or not the letters told the truth. At the time agreed on they went, and after going in the office the doctor lock ed the door. There were two long knives on the table, and Hoffman was alarmed. Roecke sat down near the table and Hoffman seated himself west of him, on purpose. as he says, to watch him in case he should attempt anything against L. The doctor's hand was on one of the knives while Linhoff began walking up and down the room. The conversation at first was on different subjects. When Linhoff, who had appeared perfectly cool, asked Roecke if his wife in the old country was living or dead, the doctor did not return an answer for awhile, and then said: "Yes, I have a wife, and have been married ten years. I left her because she was a cripple." Linhoff then inquired of him what he would do for the satisfaction of his sister, at the same time telling him that he n relation to Linhoff's sister, whereupon Linhoff pulled a pistol from his pocket, presented it and fired. The doctor rose, took one step and fell a corpse. The ball had penetrated the heart, passing through both ventricles. He moaned once, but did not speak from the time of the report until he expired. Immediately afterwards, Linhoff left and walked straitway to the office of furtise Poters W. Lebest 19 to Justice Peter W. Johnstone, where he surrendered himself into the hands of the officers. He was then committed to jail to await an examination.

Hoffman, in his testimony at the inquest, said that he knew that Linhoff had a pistol office simply to ask him if the letters were county jail. true, and, if so, to have him prosecuted for bigamy. He swore that, to the best of his knowledge, Linhoff had no intention of killbigamy. He swore that, to the best of his knowledge, Linhoff had no intention of killing the doctor when they went to his office. After hearing the evidence, the Coroner's jury brought in a verdict that the deceased came to his death by a ball passing through the heart, shot from a pisted in the hands of the heart, shot from a pisted in the hands of the heart, shot from a pisted in the hands of the heart, shot from a pisted in the hands of the heart, shot from a pisted in the hands of the heart, shot from a pisted in the hands of the heart shot from a pisted in the hands of the heart shot from a pisted in the hands of the heart shot from a pisted in the hands of the heart shot from a pisted in the heart shot from the heart s the heart, shot from a pistol in the hands of Henry Linhoff.
