THE BRECKINRIDGE RESOLUTIONS.

The following are all the resolutions of general character, with the exception of the one recommending to the County Committees of the several counties of this State to have ballots prepared favoring the calling of a Constitutional Convention, that were passed by the late Breckinridge State Convention:

Resolved, That the Democracy of California Resolved, That the Democracy of California, in Convention assembled, indorse and cordially approve the platform adopted by the Convention which nominated John C. Breckinridge and Joseph Lane, as a just exposition of the true principles of the true National Democracy.

Resolved, That the Administration of James Buchanan has met the just expectations of the secretary by its restriction. Formous and levelty

Resolved, That we congratulate the people of this State upon the passage through the Senat of the United States of a bill to establish a daily Overland Mail on the Central route: and re spectfully, but earnestly request Messrs. The first resolution is a matter of course The second resolution is historically false. The Administration of James Buchanan has not met the just expectations of the country. On the contrary, it is looked upon by the great body of the people as a miserable failure. The people in several of the States have repudiated it, and the majority in the ranks of the different parties is well known to be opposed to it. Even in the late Breckinridge State Convention of Virginia the name of Buchanan was not even mentioned, and all appeared desirous to forget that there had ever been an Administration in his name. The third resolution is artfully worded to screen the gross delinquencies of the two Senators of California in not having secured the passage of Hale's bill, when it could easily have been done, instead of directing their attention to subserving private and special interests on the Southern well-known that Breckinridge voted against a Pacific Railroad in Congress, and that his party in the South is opposed to the project. It is only a few days since that the Breckinridge State Convention in Virginia distinctly repudiated the measure. The watchword of the Daily Overland Mail was fully illustrated in the course of the party at the last session of Congress. The patronizing attention paid to Mail Steamships to China and Japan, all at once, is amusing. The idea was derived from Senator Gwin's speech at Stockton, and was made use of as a flyer. When Senator Broderick urged the project, we heard of no resolution in a Lecompton State Convention. The resolution also states that the Convention is in favor of "the annexation of all the territory we can honorably acquire." We have no doubt that this declaration is uttered in perfect sincerity, provided the territory can be set apart for slavery, or Congressional protection of slave property be extended over it. Take the resolutions altogether, they are weak and meaning less, and intentionally so. The interests of the cause required this Good Resolutions.—The late Republican County Convention passed two resolutions, which are worthy of particular commendation. The one that is aimed at the infamous Libel Bill of the last session of the Legislature is manly and direct. So, also, is the one in reference to the Bulkhead. There is no dodging of the question in either case. We subjoin the resolutions which appeared vesterday in our regular pro-sell. President of the Pony Express Company, has ordered his agent in San Francisco to notify the California daily press that each Express will bring one letter weighing half an ounce, from correspondents at the East, free of charge, until after the Presidential election. This is very convenient for those papers which have not been able to pay for their own letters.

SIGNIFICANT .- Every Breckinridge weekly paper that has come to hand for the last week or ten days, contains the San Francisco Herald's report of the speech that Gwin was supposed by some to have made in Stockton. The Senator, it is presumed, stands the expense, for it is not usual for those papers to publish extended re-

THE STATE SOCIETY AND ITS ENEMIES. | BY TELEGRAPH TO THE UNION.

The prospect of a successful State Exhibition this year is so well confirmed by accounts from all the counties north and south of Sacramento. between the Coast Range and the Sierra Nevada, that we have no room for hard feeling towards the little fraternity of disappointed individuals who have made the San Francisco "Alta" the organ of their opposition. So far as we know, this journal now stands alone, even among its many city cotemporaries, in its censure and detraction of the State Society. We should except, perhaps, a weekly paper published in Alameda county, which also opposes the State Fair, and whose publisher, being one of the managing Board of the Bay District Society, will probably continue to oppose it while there is a The Pony Express arrived in this city yester hope of breaking down the one and building up the other in its room. Away from the immediate influences of this Society, we find only sentiments of good will towards the coming Fair, on the part of the press of the State. The mistrust which was engendered by the representations last Winter, that the people of Sacramento were taking unfair advantage of their position to retain the State Fair permanently in this city, has died out in the minds of all unprejudiced persons, and now from every side we have assurances that the coming Exhibition will not only be more largely attended, but present a greater display and variety of California productions than any Fair that has yet been held. The efforts of its San Francisco opponents will hardly succeed in preventing a full representation of the farming and mechanical interests in that section from appearing. The only effect of their enmity, therefore, that we can see, has been to revive the old spirit of jealousy between San Francisco and the interior counties, uniting the latter in a common cause against what has seemed more like a factional and selfish opposition than a desire to promote the interests of the whole State.

> Although the hostility of our San Francisco enemies is directed against the State Society, which it seeks to overthrow, it is acknowledged by them to proceed solely from dissatisfaction with the course of its Sacramento members in voting for their city as the locality for the next Fair. At any other time it might be well to inquire in what way the Society, as a State institution, has forfeited its character for usefulness and its claim to the support of the people of the State by any temporary advantage, honorably or dishonorably obtained in its councils by the members representing any one locality? On the same principle, our State Government is no longer worthy of support because partisan politicians have taken possession of it, and dispose of its offices. And by the same reasoning we might object to the further continuance of our Federal organization because Buchanan and his friends have so shamefully abused its powers. A remedy for the latter evil is nigh at hand, and in the same way, and with much more certainty, the disaffected members of the State Society will have an opportunity, before next year's Fair, to rectify any errors and right any wrongs mitted this year. But the time has passed for an argument based on the justice or injustice of the position assumed by the San Francisco seceders. The case has already gone to the people, and the verdict will be made known

One word, however, as to the oft repeated slander that the people of Sacramento exhibited at the annual meeting in January last a selfish disposition to aggrandize themselves at the expense of members from abroad. In the published official transactions for 1859 and '60, the vote that located the Fair was as follows: The last resolution is a mere ad captandum one to tickle the ears of the groundlings. It promises pothing and means nothing. It: 138. Of the 1,200 members of the Society, Sacramento alone furnished 761; and of that number, not more than one-fourth were present and voted upon the question of future location. Three-fourths of the Sacramento members took no part in the discussion or business, preferring the members from abroad should determine all matters at issue. This showing, as every candid man will acknowledge, is far from exhibiting a grasping or mercenary spirit, and as the itineracy question is one that must always be decided by a vote of actual members, it is the duty of those who desire the benefits of the Annual Fair to be present at the meeting in January and see that its location is made in the

A FEW PERTINENT QUESTIONS .- Some Kentucky paper, and we think it is the Louisville Democrat, suggests to its friends in Kentucky that whenever they hear a friend of Breckinridge proclaiming either on the stump or around some social bar about Southern rights and Congressional protection of slavery in the Territories, they put the follow questions to him:

 Was there not a large majority in the United States Senate last Winter in favor of Courses. sional protection of slavery?

2. If so, why did they vote down, almost unanimously, Brown's proposition for the protection of slavery in Kansas of slavery in Kansas?

3. Are you in favor of a dissolution of the Union if Lincoln is elected? 4. Are you in favor of a dissolution of the Union if Douglas is elected?
5. Can you tell us why Breckinridge assisted to nominate General Taylor, and then refused to vote for him or Cass? 6. Are you for a dissolution of the Union if you don't get slavery protected in the Territories by the Federal Government?

7. Why do your friends run Breekinridge tickets in the free States, when its only effect can be to give the electoral vote of those States

The same paper advises its friends to cut out these questions and lay them away in a snug corner of their pocket books, and try them on the first apostle of Breckinridge and disunion that they meet. It is thought that the answers

PLUMAS AGRICULTURAL FAIR.-A meeting was recently holden in Quincy, and a Committee appointed to confer with the farmers and mechanics, and make necessary arrangements for the reception of articles and stock that might be offered for exhibition. It was resolved that the Secretary be instructed to open his books for the reception of members, and give certificates of membership at two dollars and fifty cents each. It was also resolved that the Committee of Arrangements make a list of premiums to be awarded at the next Fair.

INSANITY .- A young Mexican named Manuel Ortes, who was recently arrested in San Francisco for being insane, has been sent to Stockton. He has been a waiter, says the Times, on the Senator. EL DORADO COUNTY FAIR.

[FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.] COLOMA, EL DORADO COUNTY, Sept. 12, 1869. This is the last day of the Fair, and the attendance as been very good; but truth impels me to say that neither the attendance nor amount of articles on exhibi tion is worthy of the resources and population of El Dorado county. The reason of this is not want of appreciation of the utility of Fairs by the people of this part of the State, but has arisen from feuds and factions that have sprung up among members of the Society, and reached such a pitch of acrimony as to induce the ninority to stay away entirely. Individuals should not allow their private feelings to interfere with the public a tour of this town, with the view of storing the memory

After breakfast this morning, a small party of us made a tour of this town, with the view of storing the memory with the appearance of the locality that exposed to man's view the first plece of gold. Coloma valley is probably the most picuresque in the State, with its gold mines and gardens, villages and water courses, water wheels and miners—all shut into a space some two miles wide by mountains of st. pendous grandeur, some of which are already covered with vineyards, which are airrigated profusely from the numerous flumes that trace the mountain sides, and bring water down from higher portions of the Sierra Nevada.

The first object of our walk was to reach the site of Satter's Mill, where some tw. Ive years ago John W. Marshall made the discovery which so astonished and interested the whole world—not the scientific world, like Newton or Galileo; nor the commercial world, like the Rothschilds; nor the novel reading world, nor the world of fashion—none of those smail planets—but the universal world. In digging a mill race for John A. Sutter on this spot, Marshall discovered a piece of gold. Gods, what a mighty sensation it produced! The Crusades sunk into Insignificance, and the cholera never traveled half so fast. Over rivers, oceans and nations it went with the speed of lightning, and was understood at once by all tongues and all religions. Jew and Gentile, pagan and heathen perceived the value of the grand discovery, and at once prepared to found an empire in such a land of wonder; and "El Dorado!" became the cry of millions! Well, on the spot where this discovery was made I stood this morning, and looked for the mill; but, alas! it is a thing of the past—all traces of it are as completely obliterated as the Temple of Jerusalem. Not a stick is left to tell where the discovery, and it was carried away piecemeal to build flumes and fires by the miners. I afterward had a conversation with John W. Marshall himself, at the Fair, and was informed by him, with an air of injury, that "they" did not leave him the o

We next crossed to the north side of the river, nes the base of Mount Murphy, the highest peak visib-nereabout and called after an old fellow who turne hereabout and called after an old fellow who turned misanthrope, built his cabin near the top, and used to walk a mile up the mountain every night to his lonely couch. The original town stood on this side, and there are now some fine gardens, the largest of which is probably that of Captain Van Guelder, where can be seen the first apple tree planted in the valley. The principal hydraulic mining is also being carried on over here, and we were shown many of its mysteries by Frank Marlon, the owner of a claim, who was at work on it, and who has the reputation of being one of the best practical miners in the county. Your readers all know the wonders produced by hydraulic hose. With a good head of water, and a good head to conduct it, our miners of the present day can pile Ossa on Pelion as easy as the glants or profane deities of old ever did, and leave no doubt about it either.

This is a fruit-growing valley, as may be inferred from This is a fruit-growing valley, as may be inferred from the fact that some seventy thousand dollars' worth of pomological productions were sold out of it last year. There are some beautiful orchards, loaded down with apples, peaches, nectarines, plums, soft-shelled almonds, etc.; and although they mature a month later than in the valley of the Sacramento, they are, in my opinion, all the better for it, as they have an acidity, pungency and flavor, which I believe a little cold weather is necessary to create in fruits belonging to temperate latitudes. But all this fertility arises from the land being well watered from the flumes that pass through the valley, and should mining give out the cost of water being well watered from the flumes that pass through the valley, and should mining give out the cost of water for irrigation would be a sad drawback on the profits of horticulturists.

The town of Coloma at present contains some five hundred people, having lost in population, I believe, since the removal of the county seat to Placerville, Four churches, however, are sustained by it—a Methodist, Baptist, Episcopalian and Catholic. I had a look through the Episcopal Church, which is a neat edifice, built in Gothic style, and well furnished in its interior arrangements. The people seem to love their little built in Gotine style, and wen intrinsical in its interior arrangements. The people seem to love their little town, and some of the oldest residents placed your correspondent under obligations by their good-natured efforts to give him information respecting the valley, and otherwise to render his stay among them agreeable.

otherwise to render his stay among them agreeable.

Toward noon, to-day, the Fair became quite crowded with visitors from the town and county, a large proportion being ladies, who no doubt wished to attend the ball this evening before departing.

One of the finest pieces of mechanism on exhibition is a full-rigged ship of war, made by R. H. Storer, of Coloma (whose model of a suspension bidge—also on exhibition—I mentioned yesterday). This miniature ship would do a sailor good to look at, so perfect is it in hull and rigging. It is copper fastened, clipper built, hull and rigging. It is copper fastened, clipper bullt, and so complete in its appointments that I understand a Committee of sea captains at the Mechanics' Itstitute, agreed in awarding Mr. Storer a diploma. Pretty good for a land lubber.

The State Society is represented here by one of its managers, P. J. Devine, of Sacramento, who has been busy since his arrival in concerting measures to have this county, through its Society, well represented at the approaching State Fair.

There is some domestic manufactured jewelry on exhibition, of chaste design and good execution, made by Seeley & Cullen, of Coloma and Placerville.

Wine-making has fairly commenced in this part of the mountains, and nearly every family owning a vine-yard, however small, have wine of their own make and for their own use, not to mention several parties who jard, however smail, have wine of their own make and for their own use, not to mention several parties who make wine to last long and to compete with other wines in the markets of the State. One of the principal vinimers here is Mastin Alholf, who has extendly wineyards some matured and Alholf, who has extendly wineyards some matured and wines where a large wine-vault is in course of construction. He has on exhibition two specimens of when Catawab and Claret—the latter made from the black Isabella grape. The former, however, is the article of which the people boast, claiming for it an equality, if not superiority, to any other domestic vine in the State, short of Champagne, to table purposes, It is made from the Catawabs grape, to which Longworth has given a celebrity by his manufacture from it of superior Champagne. I tasted the wine, and partially coincide in the encondums lavibled upon it. It is rather sweet, has an agreeable flavor, and with a strong body is yet sufficiently free from alcohol to be used as a table wine. It was awarded the first premium.

Climate, soil, vegetation, all conduce to give us vigor and superiority both in the animal and vegetable kingdom." Here the speaker gave the theory of wise Governments in connection with agriculture and stock raising. It would be the policy of such Governments to make natural laws and encourage a proper application of labor to the first and principal arts of life. He continued: "Mining is one of the most important branches of industry among us and demands our fostering care. The mines are our market. Mining and agriculture—the one derives principal support from the other—their interests are inseparable. It has been justly said, if the farm (the ranch) be the body, the market (the mines) is the head, hands and feet of civilization. The two branches are helpmeets of each other. There must be the demanding market, else the agriculturist is impover-isked and degraded by the very toil that now so elevates him in social and monetary life. A market gives the farmer his plow, an instrument more powerful than the lever and fulcrum of Archimedes. It furnishes us with the intelligence of the press; with all the implements of art. It carves; it gilds. From mortar, brick and carved wood it rears the stupendous edifice that decorates his rustic possessions." Here the speaker deprecated the jealouise and adverseness supposed to exist between the mining and agricultural interests. Said he: "Our hillsides and mountain gulches by positive experiment are proved to be better adapted to grape growing than other lands of the State, and are rendered easy and propitious for that purpose because of the numerous water ditches that meander over every acre, which ditches, had they twice the capacity they now have, could not afford one-half the humid subs ance required to Irrigate one-half the land in El Dorado susceptible of producing, at present rates, a thousand deliars' worth of grapes to the acre. The day's proceedings closed with a running race through the main street of Coloma, between Young Moscow (nine years old) and the "Tudsbury Colt," for a citizens' purse of $25 or $50; distance, three hundred yards. The Judges could n state route to Folsom and Sacramento some six mile office. Allow me here to modify some disparaging remark made in my first letter about the main road. In return ing to-day I found it a very good mountain road, discovering excellences which I could not see when riding in the mail coach—which goes to prove that tion as teacher in the Sutter street school; Miss Nutter was elected to fill a vacancy in the Rincon school; and Miss Taylor to a place in the Powell street school.

Superintendent Denman reported that he had, in accordance with the law, and the instruc-had, in accordance with the law, and the instruc-tions of the State Superintendent of Public In-struction, appointed John Swett, George W. Nivans, Ellis H. Holmes and Thomas C. Myrick a Board of Examination, to examine and grant certificates of qualification to teachers.

The above named Board met on September The above named Board met on September 10th, and found William Hamill, A. E. McGlynn and Frederick Elliott qualified to teach the ever ing school; but as there was a difference opinion in regard to the legality of the action of the Board, they have decided not to issue an certificates of qualification until the question shall be fully settled by the proper tribunal Denman would therefore recommend the above named gentlemen as well qualified for the posinamed gentlemen as well qualified for the posi-tion of teachers in the evening school.

Janes objected to the adoption of this report.

The same law under which the Superintendent had acted in appointing this Board of Examina-tion would oblige the Superintendent to apply to the Supervisors for the amount of salary to be allowed him. The law, Janes contended, was be allowed him. The law, Janes contended, was applicable only to rural districts, not to cities where there was a Board of Education, Dungan, while not recognizing the application of the law to San Francisco, still moved that Hamill, Elliott and McGlynn be accepted as teachers, and that certificates be granted them. The motion was lost by a tie vote. The matter was finally got over by Evergence. was finally got over by Brewer's motion prevai ing, that the Committee on Examinations be authorized to examine applicants for teacher Committee on Examinations be au
