[From our Second Edition of Yesterday.] BY STATE TELEGRAPH. MASSACRE OF MODOCS.

Modec Captives Intercepted by Armed Men and Murdered in Cold Blood.

BOYLE'S CAMP, Tule Lake Peninsula, June 8th—Noon.

About daylight yesterday morning, John and James Fairchild, and a dozen other citizens, left Fairchild ranch, on the bauks of Cottonwood Cambridge and Advanced Cambridge. left Fairchild ranch, on the banks of Cotton-wood Creek, with seventeen Modoc captives, including Bogus Charley, Shacknasty Jim. Tebee Jack, Poney, Little John and Mooch. John Fairchild, Bogus and Shacknasty Jim, and all the white men, save James, being mounted and armed, rode in advance soon after the start, leaving the balance of the party several miles behind. James had the Indians in a wagon drawn by four mules. At the crossing of Lost river, late in the afternoon, James came across the Oregon volunteers, Captain Hiser, who were in camp and en route for home. The members of the company were scattered around the camp and engaged in various occupations, the camp and engaged in various occupations, but upon the approach of the Indians they ran and armed themselves, and then gathered about the wagon

Captain Hiser said: "Where is Hooka "At Boyle's Camp," replied Fairchild. Hiser-"What two scouts left Fairchild's

Hiser—" What two scouts left Fairchild's this morning?"
Fairchild—"Bogus and Shacknasiy."
Hiser—" What route did they take?"
Fairchild—" Can't positively state."
Hiser—" What Indians have you here?"
Fairchild—" All Hot Creeks, except Little John, who is a Lost River."
Hiser, to Little John—" Who shot you?"
John—"Shacknasty Jim."
John was hadly wonneed in the thigh and John was badly wounded in the thigh and ad his leg broken below the knee.

Hiser to Fairchild—"What kind of Indians

re these?
Fairchild—"I guess these are not among the cost; there are no charges against them."
The conversation was of this sort. For some ime Fairchild had an idea that it would be best o place the Indians under the protection of Hiser, as matters were getting mixed. The volunteers looked as if they meant mischief. Upon second thought he deemed it best to push forward and reach this camp as soon as pos-

Hiser-" Where will you camp?" Fairchild—"At Dennis Crawley's, Fairchild drove on and the volunteers re-urned to camp. Hall an hourafter this episode watched them the more closely as he spected foul play. They gained that point, suspected foul play. They gained that point, dismounted and placed their hats upon the sage brush. One of them tied a handkerchief about his head, and used a pantaloon leg, undoubtedly for the purpose of disguise. When the team neared them one stepped to the rear and the other in front, and prosented cocked needleguns at Fairchild. The man in front a'so had a butcher-knife drawn. He was the spokesman. "Get down, you old white-headed s—n of a b—h." said be.

b—h." said he.

"By what authority," said Fairchild.

"By mine; I am going to kill the Indians and you too," was the reply.

Then the leader caught hold of the mules and unhitched them, or cut the harness, and Fairchild, cinging to the lines, leaped to the ground. The poor wretches implored for mercy and begged Fairchild to save them. The warriors were unarmed and knew that resistance was useless. They were the coolest in the party, said be. he muzzle of a needle gun. A shot, and Little John lay dead in the bed of the wagon with a builet in bis brain. The four mules dashed away with Fairchild and tangled him in the lines. Five more shots in rapid succession and Tehee Jack, Poney and Mooch, the remaining warriors, were dead, and Little John's squaw had a frightful wound in her shoulder. Away ahead in the road, and in the direction of Boyle's Camp, was a cloud of dust indicating the approach of a team, and hurriedly at that
The murderers espied the dust and in a moment were riding rapidly away. Sergeant Murphy of Battery G, Fourth Artillery, with ten men and a teamster, came by the team. The Sergeant took charge of affairs and remained with his men on the ground, and Fairchild and the teamster, the wounded squaw and her two children came hither at 2 o'clock this morning. Fairchild reached General Davis' headquarters and related his story. Teams, with an escort, were at once sent out after the prisoners, dead and alive. No steps were taken for the apprehension of the fellows who performed the bloody work. It is generally supposed that the Oregon volunteers generally supposed that the Oregon volunteers are the guilty parties. Fairchild is of that opinion himself. The warriors killed were not charged with nurder. Those who know them best say that they have only participated in open fights. Every one here condemns the affair as atro-cious and without excuse. The murders were carried out upon a carefully arranged plan, as Fairchild noticed horsemen on the road ahead and behind him when the shots were fired. Had John Fairchild instead of James been present another murder might have been added to the long list, as the Oregonians are bitter in their

THE MAN OF AND FOR THE PEOPLE.

[From the San Jose Mercury, June 8th.]
It was to check the surging tide of corrupting monopolies in this State that Newton Booth was brought forward by the Republican party as the people's candidate for Governor. They had watched the demoralizing encroachments of the railroad power upon the legislation of the State, had seen subsidy after subsidy asked for of the Legislature, and granted with alacrity, and there was none to stand between them and their plunderers. In the quiet, scholarly merchant of Sacramento—a man of scholarly merchant of Sacramento-a man of scholarly merchant of Sacramento—a man of tried integrity and sound statesmanship—they thought they discovered the traits of character and the true grit in the defense of the right, that they required in the Chief Executive. We all remember the howl of opposition that was raised against him by the railroad organs of the State—the journals that lived on the crumbs that fell from Stanford's table, and were ready to do the hidding of the great rail. the crumbs that fell from Stanford's table, and were ready to do the bidding of the great rail-road magnete in all things. Nothing daunted, the people, conscious of the integrity of their cause, rallied to his support and placed him in the executive chair. Nor were their expectations unfulfilled. He stood as a wall of adamant between them and all thieving legislation, interposing his honest vetoes in behalf of the rights of the people.

turned to camp. Hall an hour after this episode a citizen rode up and asked Fairchild if any men had passed along ahead of him, and the latter replied in the affirmative. The stranger kept Fairchild company for a mile, and turned off to the right toward a bend in the river, two miles from Crawley's house. Fairchild noticed a couple of men riding hurriedly to a rocky point, we hundred yards ahead, as if to intercept him. He watched them the more closely as he watched them the more closely as he man as Newton Booth in the Senate—a man with clean hands and ability to defend their rights. But what do we behold? No sooner is his candidacy to this high office supposed to be possible than every railroad organ in the State turns to abusing him. Not one of them has a good word for the people's unquestionable choice. By lying and vituperation they hope to defeat him and secure the election of some one of their creatures. But we apprehend cnoice. By lying and vituperation they hope to defeat him and secure the election of some one of their creatures. But we apprehend their efforts will come to naught, as they did two years ago, and that Booth will be the choice of the next Legislative Joint Convention, as he is to-day of three-fourths of the veters of the State.

Then let them how!

Then let them how and rave. Let the Record and the Stockton Independent and the San Jose Putriot say their worst. We all know they are in the employ of the railroad monopoly in some shape or another, and are working for bire. They are but rendering an equivalent for a coin consideration. This well-known fact, were unarmed and knew that resistance was useless. They were the coolest in the party, though facing inevitable death. But the women and children shrieked and groaned and wept piteonsly. Fairchild had nothing but a small pistol with him; six inches from his ear was nothing else would. Booth will be the next Senator from Califor

PUBLIC PERSONALITIES. The three richest men in America are Wm B. Astor, A. T. Stewart and Commodore Van-derbilt-all residents of New York city. As-tor's wealth is mainly in real estate and its revhouses, stores, factories, lands and stocks. The aggregate wealth of each one of them is sup-posed to be somewhere between seventy-five and a hundred millions, which looks rather heavy. Nobody knows exactly; they couldn't tell themselves within a million or two. Those who know mest about their affairs put their figures bighest, and say that the income tax returns of a few years ago, which showed each of them to be worth between twenty and thirty millions, gave no proper idea of their real wealth. Astor lives anostentatiously; Vanderbit lives in a three-story brick house on a third-class street; and Stewart lives in a marble palace on Fifth avenue, more inagnificent than any other residence on the American continent, and equaled by but few in any of the great cities of Europe. As-tor and Vanderbilt are New Yorkers by birth; Stewart is a native of the north of Ireland. Astor is a large, heavy man of seventy, with strong features and a rubicund face, indicative of high living; Stewart is a medium sized man, rather slender and tall, of seventy-three, with a face like a parchment, and gives the impression of being hard-up; Vanderbilt is a tall, slim, handsome, proud-looking man of nearly eighty, straight as an arrow. Astor has whom he can leave his fortunes; but Stewart as an Indian reservation. when he can leave his fortunes; but Stewart is childless. Astor's public benefactions are confined to something like a couple of hundred thousand dollars, which he gave to the Astor Library, and the two golden candlesticks, nine feet high, which he recently gave to Trinity Church. Vanderbit has never made any public benefactions, excepting a steamship to the Government during the war, till very recently, when he gave a million dollars for educational purposes—one half of this sum to found a unipurposes—one half of this sum to found a university in Tennessee, and the other half to another educational institution. Stewart has another educational institution. Stewart has always had the reputation of being very closefisted; but he must be credited with his million dollar "Home for Women," which will be completed next year. Astor is a rigorous Episcopalian; Vanderbilt is an independent Methodist, and Stewart is said to be inclined to thinking for himself. Stewart is a scholarly man; Vanderbilt is not. Astor is an accomplished man of the world.

PRINCE ITURBIDE. - A Paris letter to the Lor don Times under date of May 10th reports as Prince Iturbide of Mexico, the last surviving night and day. This atternoon several of them rode through the military camp, wearing a light and airy uniform consisting of a towel and a lodgings, 163 Rue de Roule, aged 55. He came to Paris during the Mexican war, in December, 1865, and had several interviews with the Amer-ican Minister, whose support he canvassed in favor of his dynasty. The sudden conclusion of the war leaving him no chance, he resigned himself to a very humble kind of Paris life. He became attached to a housemand in the Hotel Espagnol, Boulevard Montmartre, where he lived for six months, and with her he started a table d'hote on the third floor of the house No. 6 Boulevard Montmartre, where this son of an emperor might often be seen in person going round the table to collect the small scot of 1t. 60c. per head. In 1867 he bought a dancing and singing cafe at Courbevoie, which he sold at a profit the next year. Though not rich enough to live according to his rank, he always had some money, and he seems to have been inclined to make a generous use of it, for the principal part of his assets, which by will he has left to bis partner, consists of outstanding loans. The American Consul, General Meredith Reverend T. K. Noble delivered a sermon last night on the Chinese question from a Christian stand-point. In the course of his remarks he said the treatment of Chinese in California was a stame to our civilization, but counseled a modification of the treaty to prevent a further influx of the magan element.

A gentleman who recently arrived in this city and A gentleman who recently arrived in this city and intends making it his home, has been engaged in operating with furnaces for the past twenty-two years, and has patented a process for smelting in a vacuum, for which he claims maximum result with a minimum of fuel by the adoption of a peculiar build of furnace which gives all the heat necessary and at the same time excludes all oxygen from the charge to be smelted; in other words, he simply brings to bear in his process of smelting the principles involved in laboratory experiments with a sealed crucible. That his furnace is a success in point of economy, dwashifty and ease of repairs, he says is demonstrated by twenty-two years of actual experience in smelting silicates, requiring from actual experience in smelting silicates, requiring from 3,000 to 4,000 degrees of heat, while the modifications necessary to adapt it to smelting ores are so simple as to have excited the surprise and astonishment of the Commissioner of Patents, who wondered why some one had not thought of the plan before.
