An important election was held in San Francisco yesterday, to decide whether we should, or should not, be provided with municipal officers or no. The result of the election was not decided by the vote cast, but, after a delay of several days, by a vote of the Senate of yesterday morning, in which the Senate present consisted of twenty and a half votes, 15 in favor of the measure, and 5 against, the measure failed by one vote. The measure was introduced by Senator Y., and the debate on the measure lasted for several days, during which time the Senate was divided almost equally on the question. The Senate then adjourned.

The debate on the measure last Wednesday was conducted by Senator Y., who said that the measure was necessary for the good of the city, and that it was the duty of the Legislature to pass such a measure. He said that the city was in a state of insolvency, and that it was the duty of the Legislature to pass such a measure to relieve the city of its difficulties.
