DEST HORSE SHOEING in the city. I am enabled to do so by long experience in the anatomy and the whole structure of the Horse frame. I will also attend to all diseases to which the Horse is subject, and I warrant a cure, if possible. I will also give advice how to treat Horses in health or sickness; and I am well versed in the subject, for I am all Horse myself.
My attention has been called to some Horses that my friend, the Excelsior Horse Shoer, had been trying to shoe, but when he had got their feet well whittled up, the Horses went lame. To remove the blame from himself, he told the owner that the Horse required setons in the shoulder. These cases happen very often with such men as McCausland. For this reason, I would call the attention of owners of Horses to this advertisement; and I will insure them that I will find out the cause of lameness and cure it quicker than any other man in town. PETER F. MANGIN,

SACRAMENTO DAILY UNION.

THE FRENCH EMPEROR

It clearly appears from the published proceedings during the execution of the Italian patriots who made the attempt to assassinate Napoleon, and from the extraordinary military force mustered on the occasion to preserve "law and order," that the Emperor of France does not repose upon a bed of roses. To protect himself, and to perpetuate his power, he has converted France into a vast camp, and established as complete a military despotism, in form, as the world ever witnessed. But it is very much doubted whether the real substance of power exists in all this military array, if the soldiers were called upon to charge their fellow citizens, should a revolution against the Govern-If the Government don't find employment for itself. Upon the present position of Napoleon, an occasional correspondent of the New York

It seems, then, that the measures of "general safety" itended to weed out the Republican element, the whole intended to weed out the Republican element, in ewhole-sale imprisonments and transportation, prove no more successful than the cites ouvries, the newly established workshops, and other attempts to purchase the conscience of the French working classes. The circumstances dwelt upon on a former occasion, which accompanied Orsin's trial, have now become the general topic of Paris conver-sation. It has even oozed out that when the voluminous correspondence of Orsini and Pierri came to be examined.

the Emperor, before having made sure whether or not the Republic was proclaimed. The fact proves that the mass of the army cannot be relied upon. Save its heads, which are too deeply compromised, or have received too brilliant rewards to separate their destinies from that of the Empire, there is perhaps but one single portion of it altogether trustworthy, namely, the Guards. This corps is indeed very strong, and must be aware that, under any other government, it would be merged into the line, or altogether disbanded. Its infantry force consists of four regiments of grenadlers, two regiments of voltiguers, one regiment of gen d'armes, one regiment of Zouaves, and one battalion of chasseurs—altogether seventeen battalions of infantry. It musters, besides, two regiments of cuirassiers, two regiments of dragoons, one regiment of mounted grenadiers, one regiment of hussars, and one regiment of chasseurs, or twenty one squadrons of cavalry; its artillery, too, being rather strong. Its whole numerical force amounts to about 20,000 men, with 40 to 50 cannons, a nucleus sufficiently powerful to counteract the tendencies to vacillation which might prevail in the line, in the case of a serious struggle with the Paris people.

Moreover, everything is provided for a sudden concen-people.

Moreover, everything is provided for a sudden concentration of the troops from the provinces, as the most superficial glance at a railway map of France will prove, so that a movement which should not take the Government by surprise is sure to find arrayed against it the formidable force of from 60,000 to 80,000 men. But the ment by surprise is sure to find arrayed against it the formidable force of from 60,000 to 50,000 men. But the very measures Bonaparte has taken to suppress an armed revolt, make it quite improbable that it should occur except on some great unforseen occasion, when the decidedly anti-Bonapartist attitude of the Burgeoisle, the secret societies undermining the lower strats of the army, the petty jealousles, venal treacheries and Orleanist or Legitimist leanings dividing its superior layers, are likely to turn the scale in favor of the revolutionary masses. The worst thing that could happen to the latter would be a successful attempt on Bonaparte's life. In that case the answer given by Morny, at the beginning of the Russian war, to Bonaparte's question, what they intended doing on his sudden death: "Nous commencerions de jeter tous les Jeromes par le fenetre, et puis nous tacherions de nous arranger tant bien que mal arec les Orleans," [We shall begin by throwing all the Jeromes out of the window, and then we shall arrange matters as well as we can with the Orleans family,] would perhaps turn out a prophecy. Before the men of the Faubourgs could have decided upon the course to take, Morny might execute his palace-revolution, proclaim the Orleans, and thus draw over the middle classes to the anti-revolutionary camp.

Fremont, with regard to bringing water into this and other mining districts of this county for the use of the miners, that there is no prospect whatever of the long expected ditch being even commenced by him. * * * * We expect to see Fremont immediately give a general "right of way" for water ditches over his grant, and throw no impediment in the way of those who may undertake the project he has failed to carry out. By this means he will partially recover the good opinion of those among whom he should stand "first and best," being the largest property holder in the county—and also justify the good feeling ex-pressed toward him on his advent among us. The above recommendation we consider to be

It has even oozed out that when the voluminous correspondence of Orsin and Pierri came to be examined, letters written by Louis Napoleon, and signed by himself, dated many years ago, came to light. If the French Contact was still in the agreeable position it held in M. Guizot's time, we should, day after day, be treated with the solemn phrase, "L'horizon politique s'obseurcit." IMPORTANT DECISION IN YUBA. - An important case was decided April 20th at Marysville, in the District Court. The case was B. F. Reed et al. vs. Bruce Frey et al., and the circumstances, as given by the Marysville News, are as follows: The plaintiffs claimed a quartz ledge on the ground of the defendants, under some rules made ground of the defendants, under some rules made by an association of about ten persons, after the ground was taken up for placer mining by the defendants; the plaintiffs claiming quartz mining to be a separate and distinct branch, and that a miner could not hold a placer claim and a quartz ledge at the same time, even though it be in his own ground, unless he claims it specially as a hold from bank to bank, in a ravine, and that no side claims were allowed to be taken up on a ravine in that district. His Honor decided that when a claim was taken up for mining purposes, the occupant was entitled to all the mineral found in the claim, whether in the earth or quartz; and also, that the owner of a quartz ledge could not follow it through the ground of another party, unless the ledge was located and its boundaries defined before the ground was claimed and legally located. The claims in dispute are situated on Deadwood Ravine, near Ohio Flat, about two miles from Forbestown, and are supposed to be very valuable, as the owners have already taken very valuable, as the owners have already taken seven thousand dollars from quartz boulders found in this ground. Quartz mining is certainly a most important branch, and ought to be fostered and encouraged by all fair and legal means, but no particular interests should be permitted to interiere with the vested rights of others. This case will probably be taken to the Supreme Court, and the result will be looked to with much interest.

THE DIFFICULTY BETWEEN MAGUIRE AND AD-AMS .- The difficulty between Thomas Maguire and Ross M. Adams, the hatter, which gave rise to the prosecution of Maguire in the Police Court, for threats, yesterday, was caused by a desire on the part of the former to obtain pos-session of the store of the latter, which is next to the Opera House. It appears that Maguire leased the Snug saloon and this store room to a third party, who sub-leased this store to Adams for a term expiring next November. Adams claims not to know Maguire at all, as his lease was made with the third party. It is not claimed that Adams refused or neglected to pay rent, but it seems that on account of improvements in that county, says:

Mrs. Lesdernier, a New York lady, who has been for some months absent in California fulfilling professional engagements, gave a reading said was an average of one hundred feet in a mile, and the most, three miles fail in eighty. Take the average of these two extremes, and everybody will see that it is no child's play to get to the rich gold diggings which have set the people who lear without looking half crazy.

The country up there is almost a perfect wilderness—inhabited only by the Hudson Bay Company's attachés, a few hundred Americans who were raised on the western borders, and the Indian natives. Nothing is known of the land route to the mines; many say it is impracticable to of selections from American poets last evening, at Hope Chapel. During her stay in the towns of the Pacific coast, Mrs. Lesdernier attracted reads understandingly, and with a freedom from affectation that is most gratifying to the ear. Her articulation is for the most clear and distinct, although in some instances overmuch hurried—a fault attributable last evening probably to the natural embarrassment attendant upon her first appearance in her own city. The audience were well pleased with the entertainment, and Mrs. Lesdernier may congratulate herself that she has made a good beginning, and may safely hope for a greater popularity and a wider fame. THE LATE ROBBERY NEAR NEVADA .-- The Ne vada Democrat, after alluding to the commission of the recent robbery near that place, says, under date of May 5th: When the stages got to Grass Valley, Dawley and O'Brien got out and came back to Nevada. About three o'clock in the morning Under Sheriff Van Hagan was informed of the robbery. He immediately saddled his horse and started in pursuit of the robbers. On arriving at the place where the robbery was committed, he found the treasure box, which, of course, had been broken open and rilled of its contents. He remained there until box, which, of course, had been broken open and rifled of its contents. He remained there until daylight, when he discovered tracks where three or four men had left the place. One of the tracks was easily distinguished, and he followed it to McCarty's ranch, but was not able to trace it any farther. He then went to a cabin between the ranch and Grass Valley, occupied by D. Luddington and a man called "One-Eyed Tom." He found the two men in bed, arrested them, and sent them to Nevada, where they were ledged in init them to Nevada, where they were lodged in jail. On searching the cabin, Van Hagan found a dozen on searching the caoin, van Hagan found a dozen skeleton keys, a large silver watch and a revolver, which both of them protested did not belong to them. The watch was doubtless stolen property, and can be seen at the Sheriff's office. A gold watch and some forty dollars in money was found on Luddington's person. The miners who live in the vicinity of the cabin. on Luddington's person. The miners who live in the vicinity of the cabin have long suspected that Luddington and his comrades were robbers. It is said that they were in the habit of sleeping during the day, and were generally absent from cabin at night. After Van Hagan left the place, the miners set fire to the cabin and burned it down. Yesterday another watch was brought to the Sheriff's office, which Luddington sold some time ago to a Chinaman, for five dollars, and which is also supposed to have been stolen.

ROBBERY ON DUPONT STREET .- On Saturday orning, about three o'clock, a young lady, reiding in the house of a family on Dupont street between California and Pine, was awakened from her sleep by the moving of her door, which opened slowly and admitted a dark lantern, then own ground, unless he claims it specially as a quartz claim, separately from his mining claim. The plaintiffs did not claim the mining ground in their complaint, nor establish any prior right to the ledge. The defendants proved their right to the ground, and that they knew of the existence of the ledge and claimed it with their mining ground. They also proved that the law under which the ground was taken up allowed a miner to hold from bank to bank in a ravine, and that no state of mind to spring from her bed and rush at the intruder, screaming loudly at the same time, so as to alarm the household. The burglar, for such the visitor proved to be, sprang down the stairs, courageously pursued by the wrong cusa brawny hand and arm, and lastly, the features such the visitor proved to be, sprang down the stairs, courageously pursued by the wrong customer whom he had awakened, but he effe his escape before assistance could arrive. The inmates of the house then proceeded to examine and found that the robber had stolen a gold silver plate and other articles from the dining room—the whole amounting in value to about The gentleman of the house, fortunately, had the door of his room fastened by a catch ou the inside, or the robbery would have been much heavier than it was.
